Extra point: Life in the fast lane

There was a time when San Lorenzo Valley High freshman Joe Rodriguez used to be, as he put it, "a flunky with a 1.8 grade-point average."

That was a few years ago.

Then, with the help of the SLV junior high track coach, Chet White, he took up distance running. "It gave me something to do instead of being a little messed-up con artist," Rodriguez said.

Nowadays, the 5-foot-1, 140-pound Rodriguez is one of the best distance runners in the Monterey Bay Area. He was second in the 3,200 meters at last week's Region IV championships — he ran a personal-best 9:51.1 — to qualify for Friday's Central Coast Section meet.

And to top it off, Rodriguez' GPA has improved to 2.5. "My dad says it (running) has changed me a lot," Rodriguez said. "I'm more friendly and I get along with people and teachers now."

To explain: "Sometimes young people are bothered by stress," offered Dan Gruber, one of the top distance runners in the area. "Running is a constructive, creative outlet. It gives you a chance to go out and think and sort things out, instead of snapping at people. It mellows you out, too."

There is nothing destructive about life in this type of fast lane. And Rodriguez sees himself going a lot faster before he graduates in 1990. "By the time I'm a senior, I'm expecting to run under a four-minute mile and the two-mile in under nine minutes," Rodriguez is hoping.

High goals? Of course.

But isn't it great to be a 15-year-old?
